OBJ to JSON converter is an easy to use tool for converting OBJ files to a readable JSON format. Supports conversion of any object files formats such as OBJ, MDL, DAE, DXF, STL, DGN, X3D, VRML, and others. It converts all files in one single click. There are no parameters to configure. OBJ to JSON converter is open source and available for free. The only problem you have is that if you have a big scene and you want to parse all the objects in one file it could take a while. If you have a large scene you should separate the OBJ file into several objects but that can be a pain to do. Comments & Feedback Comments (19) I don't understand why there is no OBJ2JSON converter that converts all.OBJ files in a single click. Titles like OBJ2JSON can be scanned, but then you need to scan all the object files from all subfolders. If I want to have a quick preview of my scene, why do I need to do all those steps? If you have a large scene you should separate the OBJ file into several objects but that can be a pain to do. Not sure if I want to talk about this too much, but I did a separate OBJ to JSON converter in addition to that OGL library. I think you're talking about the fact that it would take a long time to split the OBJ files into individual objects. I should make a note to keep an eye on this thread. I've had a couple crash on my computer. No big deal. The date on the top right corner is showing the end date as 1/8/2024. That seems odd. Well, I'm no longer using the CONVERTOBJ and JSON Conveter. For the OGL Library, I'm using blender to make my own OBJ files, for export to webgl. But If I remember, openOBJ and JSON Convertor wasn't free and no longer support on web. You should use my OGL library – it's free and does everything you need to do in one step, and I update it regularly with any new developments. I'm no longer using the OGL library. I found a program that OBJ Converter is a command line tool. You can convert entire directory or multiple selected files into readable JSON format. Useful for sending materials, models and trees to WebGL. You can also export a JSON file to be imported by the OBJ files. You can specify the conversion times you need. OBJ and JSON Converter is required for sending your models to WebGL as the WebGL engine can only read them in JSON format. This tool supports both OpenGL 2.0 and OpenGL 3.2. It can also import JSON format files with the higher version. It also supports both PBR textures and AO textures. ON/OFF line is used to set whether or not the properties of the objects will be exported. Custom you can easily add your own properties and export them by setting the custom property. HelloWorld / NestedProperties You can use "?" button to export only the selected object JSON Export You can export the objects as JSON format e.g. var path = "/path/to/a/file/file.obj"; var converter = new OBJ.Converter(); //set the option converter.setOption({ ONLINE: true }); //path is a directory, you can also use the converter to create a single file. converter.Convert(path, function(err, result) { if (err) Console.warn(err.message); else Console.warn('OBJ file converted by OBJ/JSON Converter.'); }); //method to check if the file is successfully converted. converter.CheckResult(path, function(err, isConverted) { if (err) { Console.warn(err.message); return; } Console.warn('Is the file successfully converted?'+ (isConverted? 'Yes' : 'No')); //here you can check the file name or objects you have in your file. }); This will create a JSON file like this. { "MTHObjects":{ "0":{ "parent":"MTHInstance", "
