

In the manga Naruto's answer appears to be quite clear: He is the Sage of the Six Paths, but he only knew a portion of the Sage's teachings. He believed that the strongest path to develop the strength of the seal is to combine the three seals. But he didn't know the final seal, because Jiraiya said that the Tetragram Seal can't be used by humans. But in the anime, just as Naruto is about to go off with the key, we have Jiraiya say: Jiraiya: If I were to put in the seal as much strength as I have left, the seal will crack. So, you must have faith, and just like how I told you to complete what I failed to tell you, you must complete the seal. Naruto: I want to complete it for him. I want to complete it for everyone. Why is Naruto saying this? We have no idea. But it seems from later events that Naruto has begun to realize this was a mistake, and he has also become jealous of the key held by the Sage of Six Paths, who, unlike Naruto, understands the true nature of the seal. A: Because it's the Tetsumon no Jutsu that is the true seal A more in depth look at the Sage's seal should be enough to explain why Naruto did it. According to chapter 638: Naruto: Jiraiya-sensei, I know the Tetsumon no Jutsu. Jiraiya: What is it? Naruto: It is the Tetsumon no Jutsu. Jiraiya: It's an ancient technique that's been lost to the world. Naruto: I will probably die without knowing the seal, but if I learned it and learned how to put it into motion, I might be able to change the future of the Land of Fire. Jiraiya: It's about time. If you want to save the world, we have to learn the Tetsumon no Jutsu. Naruto is talking about the Tetsumon no Jutsu, but the Sage doesn't have a clue. He is supposed to be a Sage, and we are supposed to think of him as the most knowledgeable person in this world. But all he knows is the Tetsumon no J
