(80) For the last two weeks, my daughter and I were on a field trip with two other girls at my son's school. The girls' families had offered to pay our bus driver so we could go on a field trip together. We went to a museum, a doll store, to a gallery with a show about art, and to a music museum. On one of the city buses we took, a middle-aged man tried to use a fire extinguisher. The fire extinguisher did not work. (81) An airline pilot flying a 747 had gone through a decompression, causing him to pass out. The other passengers were interviewed by a psychiatrist to see if they might have a fear of flying. The passengers said that the only thing they were afraid of was being put to death by the pilot. (82) A survivor of the 2011 earthquake in Japan was described as a person with a low IQ, who was one of a few survivors among a group of five hundred people in the same situation. His name was never released. The reporter went out to the local store, where the survivors sat in a public cafeteria, and asked, "Are you the lowest IQ among five hundred survivors?" The survivor said, "There are four thousand of us here. I am one of the lowest." (83) Every morning on my way to work, I drive past the site of a farm accident that occurred five years ago.
