The backend code must run while the application is running, or in other words, as soon as node.js finishes running (it could be a long running process for example). Is there any way to do it? A: It is easy, the main program starts another node.js program in the background as a child process. Or to be more specific, the main program starts a sub-process that does not have its own process number. 577 So.2d 1225 (1991) Lucy Martha MURPHY, Appellant, v. John E. McALLISTER and Julianne Brown, as Personal Representative of the Estate of Alice M. McAllister, Deceased, Appellees. No. 90-2652. District Court of Appeal of Florida, Fourth District. May 15, 1991. Rehearing Denied July 10, 1991. Michael S. Green of Michael S. Green, P.A., Fort Lauderdale, for appellant. Beverly A. Papy and Sheldon J. Schlesinger of Schlesinger & Schlesinger, P.A., Fort Lauderdale, for appellee, Julianne Brown. PER CURIAM. We affirm the order denying a motion for attorney's fees under section 768.79, Florida Statutes (Supp. 1990). The trial court entered a final judgment for the defendant within twenty days from the date the complaint was served. The notice of hearing that was served by the plaintiff was sent to the defendant's attorney rather than to the defendant. The case was settled with the defendant's consent after the twenty-day period had expired. We cannot say as a matter of law that there was no reasonable basis for the defendant to believe that he would not prevail and therefore no reasonable basis for the defendant to refuse to consent to the judgment.
