nonstandard error structure. We propose a method for estimating the variance components for regression models that are indexed by covariates, where the error structure is nonstandard. The covariates are incorporated into the regression model via the generalized additive model. This model, which can also handle functional data, is flexible and easy to interpret and estimate, as the fitted functions are represented by spline bases. We estimate the variance components for the standard error of the coefficients using the generalized estimating equations (GEE) approach. To take into account the unknown dependence between observations, we use a shrinkage estimator. We show that the resulting estimator is consistent for the variance components, the regression coefficient vector, and the GEE variance components. We compare the performance of the proposed estimator with the ones based on fixed effects and the conditional sandwich estimator. To illustrate the practical application of the method, we estimate the relationship between body mass index and weight from the Health and Lifestyle Trends in the Young 2005 survey in the Netherlands. Customers wanting to watch UFC 239 after the Octagon event will have to do so on a shoestring budget, as the network has opted not to license the stream. Instead, the promotion has partnered with UFC Fight Pass and PBC's Fight Pass in order to broadcast the match, which will be fought by a stellar lineup of talent at the T-Mobile Arena in Las Vegas, NV on Saturday, UFC 239. The event will be available on Pay-Per-View on Saturday, but without a cable provider or a streaming partner. PBC officials told ESPN earlier this week that the promotion was mulling over whether or not to take part in UFC 239's Fight Pass streaming agreement, but felt that partnering with UFC Fight Pass and PBC's Fight Pass was the best path forward. A WWE spokesperson told ESPN earlier this week that the company also has plans to stream the event on Fight Pass, but has not yet decided which shows will be part of that deal. The UFC and ESPN earlier this year signed a deal to stream on-demand UFC Fight Pass and ESPN+ as part of a new television rights deal 2d92ce491b
