I suspect your SQL Server isn't setup for remote connections, or worse, you are mixing the two, in which case the latter is the cause. Also, some of your code needs a bit of tidying up: `mysql_connect("IP-ADDRESS-OR-DNS", "USERNAME", "PASSWORD")` or `die(mysql_error()); mysql_select_db("db-name")` or `die(mysql_error());` You're using a very old function (`mysql_*`). In 2011 you should really be using PDO (`mysqli`) or `mysqli`. Unless you have a very good reason for using these old functions, you should use one of the more modern ones, or at least use the last two parameters as a form of "strict mode". `$query = "SELECT user_name, user_time, number_of_replies, score, 'ImageCount' FROM 'table' WHERE user_name LIKE " . $ _POST['username'] . " %' LIMIT 10";` You're using "IN" when you really want to use "LIKE". `mysql_query("INSERT INTO 'test' ('ImageURL', 'ImageName', 'DateUpload', 'UserName', 'IPAddress', 'UserRating', 'ImageCount') VALUES ('$ImageURL', '$ImageName', '$Date', '$UserName', '$IPAddress', '$UserRating', '$ImageCount');` You're building a query before you insert the data. `$UserName = mysql_real_escape_string($_POST['username']);` You should be doing this anyway as it's very easy to mess up. `$host = "IP-ADDRESS-OR-DNS";` You're not checking for errors! You are getting an error. Don't catch it and just show it and get on with your life. `$sql = "SELECT * FROM 'table' WHERE user_name LIKE '$UserName%'";` You're still building the query
