Q: Setting a cookie using AngularJS when using ngRoute I am trying to set a cookie using AngularJS that stores a user's language preference which I am using to determine what is being served to the user (i.e. English, Spanish, French) The preference is set here. app.js $routeProvider .when('/', { templateUrl: './views/view1.html', controller: 'view1Ctrl' }) .otherwise({ redirectTo: '/' }); Is there a way to set the cookie on a route change? A: You can save the lang preference in a cookie with AngularJS's $cookies service app.config(function($routeProvider) { $routeProvider.when('/', { templateUrl: './views/view1.html', controller: 'view1Ctrl', resolve: { lang: function() { return $cookies.lang; } } }); }) Here's an example plunker: 82138339de
