Q: Try to do something with an error returned by Restsharp I am using Restsharp for my.net mvc project. I am using RestSharp for communication with http rest apis. I have the following requirement call a api and use some of the api response properties if there is some specific error, say 401 Unauthorized, need to log the specific error if all goes well, return 200 OK The below is how I am using Restsharp to make request and get the response object.

//----- var token = new RestClientSessionCookieAuthenticator(RestClientConstants.TokenCookieName, RestClientConstants.TokenSecret); token.IncludeCookies.Clear(); //----- var restClient = new RestClient(url);
restClient.Credentials = new NetworkCredential(username, password, domain); restClient.CookieContainer = cookieContainer; var request = new RestRequest("resourceUri", Method.GET); request.AddHeader("Authorization", "Bearer " + token.GetToken()); request.AddHeader("Content-Type", "application/x-www-form-urlencoded; charset=UTF-8"); var restResponse = restClient.Execute(request); var apiResponse = restResponse as RestResponse; if (apiResponse == null) { //Something went wrong. } The problem is, whenever there is some error in apiResponse, I would like to do something with that error. But, when I look at the API response, I do not have any property called Error. So, I am not able to know what is the error?

How can I have access to the error response? If there is no error in the response, then I can have a property named ResponseCode and ResponseMessage. But how can I have access to ResponseCode and ResponseMessage when there is an error? Thanks, A: See this An error response from RestSharp will have a "Error" property that is an Exception (even if there are no errors)

Egypt in the Field of Mars Egypt in the Field of Mars (Hebrew: האמריקאי בשדה מצרים) is an archaeological excavation in Egypt between 1906 and 1910. The field of Mars was a natural for archaeological excavations, because the area had been inhabited in the past and was presumed to be where the ancient Egyptian capital of Memphis stood. German excavator Ernst Heinrich Hermann ordered most of his fieldwork carried out there. A number of burials were uncovered and found to be from the period between approximately 3100 and 2300 BC. A key enforcement officer of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency was asked to leave his job in an all-hands email in June 2014, following a series of arrests at a Pennsylvania mine — two years after the department investigated a mining violation at the same mine. The EPA's Deputy Regional Administrator for Enforcement and Compliance Assurance John D. Graham, Jr., was arrested by local law enforcement officers in 2012 at an inactive mine owned by Consol Energy in the town of Republic in the heart of the anthracite coal region of Pennsylvania. Graham, the former chief of EPA's enforcement office, was arrested at the mine's secured
