DirectoriesPrint.NET is a .NET windows applications to print directories listing (directories which contain file or folder) from Windows. This .NET application is fully integrated with Microsoft .NET Framework 2.0 or higher and is well optimized to print more than 4000 files and directories from Local or Remote Windows PC. It supports Unicode file and directory names which helps in UAX-17 compliance for international users. It can also be used to print folders and files from the Clipboard in selected languages or with chosen fonts and also create text file for exporting directory list. DirectoryPrint.NET Description: DirPrint is a simple, fast file/directory listing application. It allows you to view the contents of selected directories (including the subdirectories) and select files and/or directories to print. It supports very wide directory listings and it can list many files. To print files or directories, select them and click the Print button. You can also view or copy your files/directories to the clipboard. DirectoryPrint can export files/directories to a text document. Features include: ? list directory contents by size or last modification time ? search files and sub-directories ? customize the color/font style of the listing ? select files and directories for printing ? print files and directories from the clipboard ? export files and directories to a text document ? create a text file for exporting files/directories ? direct printing of files or directories (file name, size, last modification time) ? selection of files and directories for printing ? support for Unicode file and directory names ? save the output in the following formats: txt, csv, xls, xlsx, rtf, html and pdf ? view files and directories in both horizontal and vertical list view ? copy files or directories to the clipboard ? specify the destination directory and file name ? use single page, two page and multiple page listings ? open/close windows ? user-friendly interface ? support for 32-bit and 64-bit systems ? free 30-day evaluation version This application is a free software, licensed under GNU GPL. DirPrinting is a file listing application that's capable of printing information about all files and folders from a specified directory. Otherwise, you can export this data to file, copy it to the Clipboard, or send it via email. It doesn't include complicated options or configuration settings, so it can be used by anyone. Plain and simple interface After a fast setup operation that shouldn't impose any difficulties, you are welcomed by an outdated interface with an easy-to-navigate structure, where you can use the built-in hierarchical tree to explore disk directories and find out the name, format, date of last modification, along with the size of each file and folder. View, copy, export, print and email file and folder listing You can instruct the program to show only files or folders instead of both, filter files by extensions, include subdirectories, and to stay on top of other programs. The file list can be previewed and prepared for printing, copied to the Clipboard, saved as a plain text document, as well as sent as an email attachment using the default email client you have installed. Apart from the fact that you can change the UI style, there are no other noteworthy options available. Evaluation and conclusion There were no stability issues in our tests, thanks to the fact that the tool didn't freeze, crash or prompt error messages. As we expected, it left a small footprint on system resources, running on low CPU and RAM. Although it hasn't been updated for such a long time, DirPrinting still works on newer Windows editions. It offers a straightforward solution to navigating disk directories for generating file and folder listing, in order to copy, export, print or email information. I'm not bitter at all, I just feel like we had a pretty good season and a lot of fun! Everyone should have that same feeling as they prepare for next year (and you can't practice and play in next year's game). I love college football
