As of 2019, Autodesk AutoCAD is still the most popular commercial CAD software used by engineers and architects around the world. AutoCAD has more than 50,000,000 copies installed around the world. 2.3 Million Projects Projects are your opportunity to show how you have grown as an engineer and architect, and as a professional in the CAD industry. Projects are developed in the form of a text file containing a description of what needs to be done, and which CAD software is used. Projects are attached to specific job orders, which are reserved for people like you that already have a contract from a company. As you complete jobs you'll advance and earn more job orders, meaning more projects to complete. To get started, visit the AutoCAD Help Center. Start by registering for a free account. You'll then be ready to complete any of the many different kinds of projects that are available. 2.3 Million Projects Projects are your opportunity to show how you have grown as an engineer and architect, and as a professional in the CAD industry. You'll want to check back often because this page is continuously being updated. These job orders are exclusive to people that have already been trained in AutoCAD. The value of becoming certified is that you will be able to earn a job order on your first try. That means you get to start earning immediately. On top of that, you'll receive lifetime free updates, access to the best training in the industry, and a cutting-edge platform to showcase your talents. But it isn't as easy as just checking a box and paying for the training. You have to be certified to get on the train. That's why it's important to start

The current rally has seen the price of Bitcoin move up to new highs. The market has gained 675% since hitting its bottom on Dec. 14, 2018, at just over $3,200. Now, as reported by CoinDesk, the markets are looking to continue their march higher, albeit amid a bit of volatility. The Hargreaves report finds that volatility is on the rise, with the average price swings over the past 30 days having jumped. The EMA 20 day moving average also has an upward bias, which the report cites as a positive signal. It could be taken as a sign that a strong recovery is about to begin, although it's important to note that when it comes to the markets, history isn't always the best predictor of the future. The rise of volatility While the report didn't look at the underlying reason for the increase in volatility, it did state that the last time volatility hit its current level was in November. This was also when the market began to rally from its fall to record lows. As CoinDesk reported in November, the day before volatility spiked, according to data from Crypto Facilities, Bitcoin had reached a daily high of $7,664, its second-largest daily rally ever. That day, the market continued to rally, breaking above the $7,000 mark for the first time since June 2017, with Bitcoin's price rising to more than $7,500. In total, Bitcoin has gained nearly $5,
