The problem is not that i am using Paint.NET but its just that as soon as i open Paint.NET and launch any filter, the filter starts ruining the default color of the picture. And when i try to remove that from the color menu of the filter, the unwanted color gets removed from the filter, but the original color of the picture is still there. And as soon as i apply another filter or any effect, the color of the picture changes again. And i have tried different settings of the picture, but nothing is working. I was trying out some new brushes, and when I applied one of the layers to the image, the image changed into a brighter shade. Is there a way to revert the changes made to the image and restore it back to how it was before? If there is no solution, is there any other method to fix this problem? Thanks. Answer:Problem of gradients Hello. I don't know what kind of brush you used, but some brushes can remove gradients and then the image won't look good. I suggest that you try the Load brush again. This also works with the Wrinkles brush. I have used this to remove unwanted gradients. Hope this helps. Posted by claudia on 10-Aug-2011 Could you please help me? The only solution that I have tried so far is to reset the color to the original one
