He might see a decimal or a comma or a dot etc. What is the best option? A: The best approach would be to use NumberFormat to output the number in the correct format for the user. An example of what you would want to do is something like this: The number you entered is $5,000,000 var num = $("#myNumber").text(); num = num.replace(/\,/g, "."); num = num.replace(/\B(?=(\d{3})+(?!\d))/g, ","); $("#myNumber").text(num); To format the number to the amount the user needs in a localized manner, you could use something like this: NumberFormat.getCurrencyInstance(new Locale("en-US", "US")).format(myNum); Here is a jsFiddle demo Here is a list of the various numbers for the different regions: NumberFormat.getInstance(Locale.US).format(123456789L); // $1,234,567,89 NumberFormat.getInstance(Locale.CANADA).format(123456789L); // $1,234,567,89 NumberFormat.getInstance(Locale.UK).format(123456789L); // £1,234,567,89 NumberFormat.getInstance(Locale.FR
