... I want to add a button for a last page, The book ends before the end of the story. I've tried many different methods but can't get it to work. A:

Ok, so here's a solution to create a button that in effect says "go to last page". I haven't tested this fully, so could use any corrections. HTML go to last page CSS

.button { display: inline-block; color: black; padding: 10px; font: bold 1em Arial, Helvetica, sans-serif; background: white; border: 1px solid #0b5594; border-radius:

20px; margin-top: 10px; text-align: center; } This div is then added to the end of your page using jQuery. JS

$(document).ready(function() {
  $("a").click(function() { location.href
    = $(this).closest("div").attr("href");
    return false; }); });

This line: `$(this).closest("div")` means find the closest element that is a div that is a child of the the element that is clicked. So your final code looks like this:

HTML go to last page
CSS
.button { display: inline-block; color:
  black; padding: 10px; font: bold 1em
  Arial, Helvetica, sans-serif;
  background: white; border: 1px solid
  #0b5594; border-radius: 20px; margin-
```

top: 10px; text-align: center; } JS
$(document).ready(function() {
$("a").click(function() { location.href
= $(this).closest("div").attr("href");
return false; }); }); Side
