I am trying to understand the relationship between Wavelet Transform and AMR. I know in Wavelet Transform the coefficient of convolution is the wavelet response. Also the Multiresolution Analysis breaks down the continuous signal in finer levels. Can anyone explain this? A: Here is my effort to summarize, I apologize if it contains errors, I am not an expert. Maybe someone more knowledgeable will be able to help you with this. The AMR decomposition is actually two things - decomposition and encoding. In the AMR decomposition, wavelet transform is used for decomposition, also the 'bad' bits, the images, have been removed first by using the Haar or Haar-like wavelet, and other wavelets are used to 'encode' the parts. In the encoding, the wavelet transform is used again to act the other way around, like
