Truly a one-stop solution, ClipText is an integrated software solution, which allows you to handle all your regular data entry tasks, copying and pasting any data without having to switch windows or applications, or do much at all. You can copy all the text from your clipboard and instantly paste it in the proper field. No matter what program you are using, you can easily select any of the fields you want to add the current data to, so you do not have to be confined to one program. For example, you can paste the selected data in the proper text editor field, or the current URL, or an image from your gallery, or whatever field you want, without having to switch back and forth from one program to another. Moreover, you can create as many fields as you want, and add as many entries as you want to each field. You can add as many entries as you need for each field, and ClipText will remember all the entries of each field. You can add the current date or time to each entry, or you can copy the current URL and paste it to the proper field. You can also create new entries, delete them and add them back, all the time keeping a track of the total number of entries you have. You can also create groups of entries to be combined and pasted together, and keep a list of all your current entries, in case you need to do a quick search for something, in the background. You can select the text you want to copy in any application. For example, you can copy and paste the selected text from any other application, such as a browser, a calculator or even from a word processor. You can also paste the selected text from any application into an email, or an address book, or a contact. Furthermore, you can copy all the selected text from any application, and instantly paste it into the proper text editor field. This is also possible when you want to paste all the text from all the entries you created so far, with a single click. Also, you can copy a text and instantly paste it to any application, right away, no matter where it was found, be it a web page, an email, a calculator, a word processor or wherever else. Even better, you can copy a piece of text from a website, which will then automatically open the web browser you have selected. With a single click, you can paste the selected text to any application, no matter where it was found, be ClipText is a user-friendly software solution whose main purpose is to help you with your regular data entry tasks, by enabling you to copy to clipboard several bits of text, which can be pasted into the proper fields with ease, without having to switch back and forth between numerous windows or programs. The application is fairly simple to understand and work with. It runs minimized in the notification area, letting you can access it easily when you need to, but without interfering with your normal activities. By right clicking its icon, you can view ClipText's main window, while left-clicking it enables you to reveal the context menu which lets you instantly copy to clipboard one of the entries you added in the past, by pressing on the corresponding title, so you can then paste them in the proper field. In the main window of the application, you can view the current clipboard entries, which can be as many as 48, each holding up to 4 KB of data (around 900 words). When adding a new record, you also have to give it a title, making it easily identifiable amongst all others in the system tray menu. Moreover, ClipText enables you to run it automatically at Windows startup, so you do not have to worry about launching it every time, it will just be there when you need to use it. To conclude, ClipText is a helpful tool that can increase your work productivity by allowing you to swiftly copy and paste pieces of text, sparing you from having to shuffle around countless windows and documents to get the job done. It's cold and sunny in Philadelphia today, but I have to think about the cold and snowy days back home. How will the wind chill factor affect my mood? Probably in a negative way, but that's only natural. The promise of warmer weather for this weekend will help, as will the promise of friends and family to help me get through a rough patch. As a first year student in a new place, I can relate to this feeling. Hopefully I'll be back to normal by next week. As I mentioned before, I was in Philly last week for the UN's conference on Humanitarian Access. As you can imagine, I was extremely busy. But I made time to experience one of Philly's best haunts – Mr. Smalls of Frankford. Mr. Smalls is a hot dog joint, if you didn't know. It's a whole lot of cute, and makes you feel warm inside. It's a place where you know people, and make plans to meet. And it's soooooo good! I loved it, and definitely recommend a visit if you're in the area. After a day of super busy meetings and a few insane flights, I went back home, and settled back in to my bachelor life. I got two tickets to see Don Ho on August 30th in Honolulu, and can't wait to go. I had a great time in Philadelphia last week, and learned a lot, but I'm ready to go home. Now I'm off to pack, and head to the airport. It's going to be a crazy week of travel, but I'm very excited about it.
