When I select this, it shows as: 29-08-2015 12:19:00 When I try to compare this to a varchar field, SQL Server interprets this as 7:19:00 AM and returns an error. I have tried to find a solution, but I do not know how to convert the time into the local time zone. I know that I can convert this into a datetime and use ConvertTime function, but I do not want to use this. A: Your format for the field is not well defined. I think what you want is "YYYY-MM-DD HH:MI:SS". This would work with an in-flight conversion. Insert Into

dbo.MyTable(DateValue, TimeValue)
Values('2015-08-29 12:19:00.000', '2015-08-29
12:19:00') Select * From dbo.MyTable

This also works and is just as standard: Insert Into

```
dbo.MyTable(DateValue, TimeValue)
Values('2015-08-29 12:19:00.000', '2015-08-29
12:19:00.000') Select * From dbo.MyTable

So if your DateValue field comes in this format, a conversion would be trivial. A: I used to have trouble with different timezones and formatting for date, time and datetime values. Here is the
