markets might see the potential in this application, its looks are not the best we've seen and could use a complete makeover to match nowadays standards. Unfortunately, the application's developer is not currently developing new releases. The statement that "most" brokers are cold calling to get new business is no longer true. A market study by Infoholic revealed that in 2005, around 35% of new business was a result of cold calling. Although the numbers have reduced to around 28% this year, it is still one of the fastest growing methods of acquiring business. While cold calling is more expensive than other types of methods, it can produce higher-than-average turn rates and ROI for brokers. In the course of a single year, brokers with higher revenues generally cold call more than those with lower revenues. In fact, a broker can get more business per hour by cold calling than by "inbound" marketing such as SEO. The purpose of cold calling is to land an appointment with the decision maker. The more an agent has personal and professional contact with this person, the more business they can get. Professional brokers should have written appointments for all prospects and go through the contact process in a well-organized manner. It will increase the likelihood that the prospect will respond to their call. Cold calling is part of a broker's marketing strategy.

Brokers need to focus on the process of cold calling and not just its outcome. Despite their drawbacks,

What's New In?

Track Your Trades is an application specifically designed for financial market investors and traders, enabling them to conveniently keep track of their transactions, accounts and funds. Furthermore, it provides a quick method to calculate your taxes and generating Schedule D reports. Monitor transactions and investments Traders and active investors may find themselves having to keep track of a high number of transactions for stocks, options and mutual funds. This application can lend them a helping hand in this matter, providing options for storing detailed information concerning purchases and sold shares, commissions and so on. It enables investors to take a look at their transaction history, view opened positions, track long-term and short-term capital gains. Furthermore, it is capable of determining the total value of the portfolio and the price of weighted shares. Build efficient tax-related strategies

Aside from its transaction management functions, Track Your Trades provides assistance in planning income tax returns and calculating the corresponding tax values.

Its integrated 'What-if' wizard can offer predictions on profits, losses and capital gains, which can be of great help in building the investment strategy and making more efficient decisions. The application comes with options for generating Schedule D tax reports, which include capital gains and losses resulted from your activity. You are free to select the equity types to include in the report and optionally exclude wash sales. Additionally, it can create Form 4797 for Mark-to-Market traders, used for reporting non-capital and capital assets, as well as gain or loss for the other shareholders. A handy tool
