Automated digital mammography in practice: results and observations. To evaluate the first year of operation of a fully automated digital mammography system in clinical practice and to report on technical and patient-related problems encountered in daily use. On the basis of an original design concept based on the mathematical optimization of image quality, a 14-cm-thickness conventional screen/film mammography unit (APIDOC 6000) was developed for automated digital mammography. This device was installed in a radiological laboratory (n = 708 examinations) and was evaluated according to the following criteria: (1) technical (image quality, examination duration, and technical faults) and (2) patient-related (image quality, use of compression, and radiation dose). One-year follow-up of the system was conducted. Digital mammography was technically feasible in all cases and examination duration, mainly caused by the relatively long exposure times of the new device, was acceptable (mean, 28 min). Image quality was in the range of that of the image quality of the conventional film-screen mammography unit. Two image-quality failures caused by the detector caused by incorrect operation of the system were encountered. Diagnostic acceptability of digital mammography was 100%. Digital mammography requires new exposure parameters, new postprocessing algorithms, and new programs. Adjustment and adaptation of patient and breast compression in relation to the new exposure settings is possible. Q: python multiprocessing queues does not have queued jobs I have 2 queues one for Producer and one for Consumer. I am using multiprocessing as well. For a consumer, I am passing a function to queue.put() method, but queue.get() method does not have any jobs in queue. So how can I achieve this? queue_pro 77a5ca646e

What's New In Mail Icons Classic?

Mail Icons Classic is a high quality icon set that will give a new look to your email folders. The set contains 6 well crafted icons, at a high pixel rate (256x256), in PNG, ICO and ICNS format suitable for various applications or personalized folders. The icons are very detailed and are made with a modern and smooth feeling. Icons: The present invention relates to a fluidic circuit for dispensing fluid from a container, in particular a cartridge or syringe, having a first inlet for receiving the fluid, a second inlet for conveying the fluid to the fluid circuit and a closure closing off the second inlet, in which the fluid circuit is disposed in a cavity in the closure. This type of fluidic circuit is known from EP 0 862 849 A1. The prior art circuit consists of a flexible tube with a diameter of approximately 0.4 to 0.6 mm. The diameter of the opening of the tube to which the first inlet is connected is somewhat smaller. The closure is located on the tube, so that it can be folded back and glued into a channel in the body of the closure. In this way, a fluidic circuit can be preassembled without the necessity of directly bonding the circuit to the closure. The tube is located in the channel in the body of the closure, so that a small lateral offset of the tube can occur relative to the channel, the tube being fixed at its end section in the channel by the glue, and it may thus expand and contract laterally, depending on the diameter of the channel. Moreover, the tube can move, for example, due to the forces of the closure, in a direction transverse to the longitudinal direction of the closure. This can lead to leakage problems. Another similar type of circuit is known from WO 2005/056741 A1. Here, a flexible tube is again used, and the fluid inlet is fixed to the closure, which is again located in a channel. However, a flexible tube is also used in this prior art circuit. This has the disadvantage that the tube does not seal at the fluid inlet, because the inside diameter of the tube cannot be adjusted to the outside diameter of the fluid inlet. Juan Carlos Núñez Mirenda, que será anunciado como nuevo rector de la Universidad Nacional de Mar del Plata (UNAmrs), está a punto de asumir, sin embargo, la Dirección de Trabajo de la institución aún no notificó el cambio en su documentación laboral, lo que deja al gremio docente con dudas sobre sus actividades desde hace ocho meses.
