10.6.6. Handbook. 10.6.7. Seymour Hadash is a third generation Israeli, a third generation Jewish refugee from Hitler's Germany. He was born in the German town of Dachau, where his great grandfather was murdered. From the age of nine he stood at the front with the ultra-orthodox Haredim in efforts to thwart the Nazi's Jewish expelling. At the age of twelve he was removed from his school and placed in a Nazi-run orphanage. At the age of sixteen he was sent to the Auschwitz where he was held as a slave labourer until he was liberated in 1945 by the Allies. In his new book A Land Of Extremes he recounts his life as a Jewish refugee, emphasizing that the price paid by those who suffered as Jews under Hitler was not just the loss of property and synagogues. The victims of the Nazis included not only Jews but also Christians and other non-Europeans. He reveals how the entire country of Israel, including churches and synagogues, was desecrated and murdered with appalling and shocking negligence. In his life he was equally a victim of Nazism and Zionism, both because of his Jewish identity and status as a German refugee. Though he was once an ardent Zionist and a liberal supporter of Israel, as a Jewish refugee and survivor of Nazi death camps he can no longer support the Israeli government's policies of occupation and apartheid as well as the repression of Palestinians and the marginalisation of Israel's own Palestinian minority. He considers himself a "conservative Zionist". This audiobook is an alternative to the one-sided narrative of good and bad Israelis. It presents a vastly different view of the Israeli situation from the perspectives of those who have suffered as both victims and survivors of Nazi racism in Israel and the occupied territories. Many will be shocked by his analysis of the treatment of the Palestinians and the Israeli Palestinians, calling into question the Zionist project from the inside. 3e33713323
