After UFC 223, UFC President Dana White said he had no idea that Nurmagomedov would have a problem with the three-time title challenger after they fought in April. However, Nurmagomedov, who checked in at 154 pounds for the first time, struggled to make 155 pounds -- if that makes any sense. After the two fought for the final time at UFC 223 in Brooklyn, Nurmagomedov -- who was in a second weight class for the first time -- came up short after he was repeatedly pounded with powerful punches by a bigger, stronger opponent in McGregor. Nurmagomedov has since admitted that the missed weight could prove to be his downfall in the UFC, and that he was trying to manipulate it by using steroids and making illegal weight cuts in the lead up to the fight. However, the undefeated Russian fighter called out McGregor anyway, who was in the middle of a self-imposed exile. Nurmagomedov struggled at UFC 223. Joe Camporeale/USA TODAY Sports But it is the speculation of failed weight cuts, steroids and
