We report two cases of fallopian tube torsion diagnosed and treated at our center during a 5-year period. The symptoms in both cases were abdominal pain, vaginal bleeding and dyspareunia. Emergency surgery was performed with a prompt good result. It is believed that laparoscopy is a rapid and safe alternative for the diagnosis of this pathology, and that the treatment should be early, especially in the case of a young patient. Posted by Pinkswirl in 2008 at 8:00 AM Remember when a personal computer didn't have a Web browser? When you logged onto the Internet, you had to use an application called the Netscape Navigator. Imagine if an application didn't come with instructions. It was just like surfing the Web on your computer — you had to figure it out. During the mid-'90s, the World Wide Web was gaining popularity, and Netscape was the leader in this space. There were three major factors that led to Netscape's success: The Internet was young. There was a lot of experimentation and opportunity. The Web was accessible. The Internet was young. There was a lot of experimentation and opportunity. The Web was accessible. People liked to share. Everyone wanted to share their favorite recipes, their favorite websites, their favorite TV shows, and their favorite music. It was just like Facebook today. They wanted to share stuff. The Web was also a magnet for people. It didn't matter if you were shy. If you were passionate about something, and you could share your passion with others, you were part of the Internet.
