KillKeys is a simple application that disables hotkeys in Windows. Disabling hotkeys prevents accidental activation of functions, which is always annoying. KillKeys provides a tray icon that can toggle the hotkeys, allowing you to configure them manually when you're ready. You don't need to bother with the application source folder to make changes, and any settings made are applied to all target hotkeys.In recent years, as a result of the advances in computer-processing technology, the use of video data compression technology has rapidly increased. The video data compression technology enables video data to be efficiently processed and reduces the load on a computer. When the video data compression technology is used, the amount of video data compressed per unit time can be greatly reduced, and a video sequence is compressed in a suitable way for a device on which video data is processed. When a video sequence is to be compressed by the video data compression technology, a suitable video encoding method is selected in accordance with the intended use of the video sequence. As a result of the changes in the video sequences that are frequently used in recent years, the number of encoded pictures in a video sequence that is encoded by a video encoding method is large. A video sequence may have a background and objects in the background may be moving or stationary. For example, in a background shot where a background scene is displayed at a constant speed and an object that is moving with respect to the background scene appears in the background shot, the background scene may be encoded by a video encoding method that enables video data to be efficiently compressed, whereas the object that is moving with respect to the background scene may be encoded by a video encoding method that enables video data to be efficiently compressed. For example, a case in which an object is moving with respect to a background scene while the background scene is displayed at a constant speed may be considered. In such a case, the image of the moving object may be encoded by a video encoding method that enables video data to be efficiently compressed, while the image of the stationary background scene may be encoded by a video encoding method that enables video data to be efficiently compressed. In this case, the image of the background scene and the moving object that are encoded by the different video encoding methods have different respective encoding modes and encoding efficiency is different between the background scene and the object. As a result, a video sequence that is compressed by the video encoding method for the background scene is different from a video sequence that is compressed by the video encoding method for the moving object.
