The Command and Conquer series essentially defined 2D real-time strategy for PC and developer Westwood Studios. In the early 90s, both original games in the series and collector's editions were released. In 1996, the first of the novels "The Curse" was published. In a 1996 poll, "Command & Conquistador" was named the best game of the year. The super popularity of the series continues to this day: it has 13 trilogies, additions, several dozen add-ons and several dozen imitators. The action of all three books takes place in the distant future, in the giant corporation Polaris. Both hired and cybernetic and mixed workers are in work. Outwardly, they differ only in the color of the overalls. In the 1990s, the series of games came out: The Command & Commando series of games is based on real events during the Second World War, when American and British troops carried out Operation Doolittle Dynasty, the goal of which was to capture Gibraltar. The player plays as a British captain who, along with his battalion's fighters, confronts the hordes of the Nazis, as well as their allies, the Japanese. The playing field is a frame divided into two unequal parts. In the upper left corner there is an air cordon, behind which the player can move during the attack. On the right is the landing area, where the objects necessary to complete various tasks are located. For each hit on an enemy object in the game, a certain number of points are awarded. In addition, for the destruction of enemy objects, a certain number of victory points are issued, and for the destruction of enemy objects, three defeats and one victory. In addition to standard objects, there are special ones in the game, the so-called "Super-destroyers". Such objects can be destroyed by conventional weapons. Players can also use various ranged and armored weapons in combat. The equipment differs significantly from the tactical equipment in the "Comrade Commander" series, for most characters it uses boots with spikes, a helmet with a set of devices to give stability (helmets with a mask, flamethrowers, gauss guns, colt-45, grenades and etc.), as well as a gas mask - both in the air and on the ground. Machine guns are not used in the game, but they can be used on unmanned vehicles. The game has several modes. Race is a game against time. In the check-in mode, driving any transport (airplane, motorcycle, car) you need to get to
