What's New in the Photoshop 2022 (Version 23.0)?

Allan Blanchett is Mr. Cool On November 29, Vanity Fair's New York City Office will be transformed from an office into a set for the 15th anniversary re-launch of the Bonfire Ball, a party thrown in the back yard of Vanity Fair's office by the VF editors-in-chief. In celebration of his turn as the latest host of the event and as part of his campaign to be the first drag queen to host the Oscars, The Next Best Thing is bringing everyone's favorite Oscar winner, Robert Smith, to the event. Mr. Smith may be in drag — what does it matter? He's Mr. Cool. If he wants to be a transsexual, let him. It's still Mr. Cool. If he wants to look like a big, bulgingly obese housewife, or wear a dress and a wig, that's cool too. At his 20th anniversary party in 2000, Smith made a big deal of wearing a dress and that led to his nomination for Best Supporting Actor at the Oscars and the presidency of the Screen Actors Guild. He's been cool ever since. But at the Vanity Fair party, Mr. Cool will have to warm up. A few days before the event, Smith informed the New York Times that he would not be donning his dress for the occasion, as he is known to do (although he did start dressing up for his 20th anniversary party). With only two days before the event, Smith said, "I don't think the world is ready for that yet." Good point. Maybe we should all put on dresses and wigs and show up for the ceremony. Smith's last film as an actor, Heaven's Prisoners, co-starred actress Zeta Robertson, who currently plays Hill House on the SyFy channel. She received some warm reviews for her performance in that movie and is looking forward to the party for her castmate, as well as to seeing more of her in the coming months. So, will it be a Cool Pool Party? For those not familiar with the fondness of Vanity Fair editors for pool parties, let me give you a snippet of that scene from the film Take the Money and Run. Fred in the movie is played by Bruce Willis, and he is the antihero in the plot. He's an accountant with a heart
