Primary spinal paragangliomas are rare neoplasms. There have been only 14 cases documented in the literature. Two cases of primary spinal paragangliomas arising in the thoracic spine are presented in this report. A 41-year-old woman presented with acute lower back and lower extremity pain and numbness. Magnetic resonance imaging showed an intradural extramedullary mass from T5 to T8 compressing the spinal cord. Preoperative angiography demonstrated a hypervascular mass compatible with a paraganglioma. Tumor resection was performed. The paraganglioma had a characteristic appearance on pathologic examination and was positive for neuron-specific enolase and chromogranin. The patient's neurologic function improved postoperatively and remained stable for 1 year.For three years now, the giant Volkswagen has been publicly wrangling with regulators over the air pollution from its "dieselgate" scandal. But now, in a veiled appeal for forgiveness, the company has introduced a new line of ads designed to actually "save the planet."
