I have a report in which based on two query paramters I want to show the report with next and previous button. How can I do that using PXQueryReportViewer? A: It is possible as long as the original report was created and saved with the 'Preserve Previous and Next' checkbox checked when saving the report. You can use SavePresetByParameter if you want to use the stored values or GenerateReport if you have to redo the report. If you use SavePresetByParameter the report can no longer be edited (if the checkbox is unchecked the report will be overwritten). Saifam is the only school that we went to and we loved it right from the beginning. The teachers all care about our well being but they are also caring in the way that they guide us through our growing up years. The teachers have helped me get the best marks and they have let me shine when I wanted to. Though I have had my ups and downs with them at times, the teachers have kept my spirit up at all times. I would definitely recommend Saifam and would love to return

I'd recommend checking out the Last Conflict guide that has a full list of all potential subclassing changes including the exact mechanics you can expect from those classes (some are on the spoiler thread). Scroll down to the bottom for the class specific aspect of that. If you're interested in some general info on the changes you can check out the LotRO Wiki article on the changes. Yes, it's been a while since that guide was written but it has all of the general information you need in one place. Some of the info in that guide is from beta information but I imagine that's more or less how the guide will still be updated in the end. I think the nature of sub-classes was what bothered me when the "you have to wait until level X to start using subclassing" became the norm. While I guess that could work out to be fair, I don't really like the idea of it. I like how the constant sub-classing in each 'class' can be kept as idealistic as possible since you're the same class every time you level
