Wendy Greuel, the city's first elected gay and lesbian school board member, resigned from her spot on Friday amid allegations of corruption involving the children of Orange County supervisors, including Sheriff's Lt. Michael Veitch, according to the Los Angeles Times. The allegations were first reported by the Orange County Register in June, and through the ensuing months Greuel quietly resigned from her job as a labor relations specialist at City Hall. But she soon announced her intention to run for the 60th Congressional District seat being vacated by Republican Congressman Darrell Issa, and now she is jumping into the race as a Democrat rather than a Republican. "I know people outside my circle will criticize me for this decision, but I would rather have people focus on the positive, and in this case that is the running for Congress," Greuel said in a Friday news release. "Many people in the LGBT community have been fighting for our community for years, and we are now about to have one of our own be a delegate to Congress. We need to speak up and fight for the rights of our community." The allegations against Veitch stem from a 2010 fight between Veitch and Irvine's mayor, who was on the Orange County Board of Supervisors at the time. The mayor, who now serves on the county board

Click on the "Start" button and then select "Run." Bid Farewell To Surrender Vastly more sophisticated than the first trailer and the eventual release of the film itself, that went down beautifully. in the Deep Background for your enjoyment and edification as I bid you farewell from this Earth for the time being. It is befitting that I would be the last, of course, but no less fitting than it is befitting to be the first. In fact it is fitting as most things that come from the Deep Background are. I bid you farewell for now and wish you a very Merry Christmas. - Deep Background Contributing Editor and all-around swell guy Robert Meyer BurnettThis invention relates to an apparatus for pre-heating press-molded articles, such as water bottles, from a molding assembly having molds, and in particular to a plunger, a rotary plate and a scraper. Water bottles and other similar hollow articles are made by a pressing operation in which a resin material, such as an ABS resin, PET resin or polypropylene resin, is injected between a pair of molds to form the molded article. The molds are heated by a pre-heating system before the injection process. In the pre-heating process, a heat-transfer plate is used to transfer the heat from the molds to the resin material. The heat-transfer plate has the heat-transfer surface which is typically a plastic film having a thickness of about 1 mm, or in some cases about 2.5 mm. The thickness is increased to more than 10 mm in some cases. The rotary plate is used to rotate the heat-transfer plate and the heat-transfer plate is rotated so as to perform the heat-transfer operation with the resin material. The rotary plate rotates at about 20,000 rev/min in some cases. In the pre-heating process, the rotary plate rotates to move the mold contact faces of each of the molds relative to the heat-transfer plate, and at the same time, it rotates, moves up and down, and moves in and out to heat the molds.
