Today, we have added it in our site for public use.News San Fransisco's second phase of development has passed three demolition hurdles and construction could begin at the end of 2018 or early in 2019. The project consists of the site of a destroyed viaduct in North Beach: a short half-mile span beginning at Columbus Avenue, west of Steiner Street, and extending to the Embarcadero. The project calls for the demolition and rebuild of one of the most significant landmarks in San Francisco. The San Francisco Chronicle identifies the structure as the double-decker streetcar viaduct. The new design of the project, as part of the South of Market neighborhood, would incorporate the historic street wall and an elevated waterfront esplanade. The project also calls for public parks, two-story mixed-use buildings, and new housing. City records show that the city has hired Caltrans to build a new bridge over the San Mateo County Line over the South San Francisco Bay. The site for the new bridge is located to the east of the current freeway. The new bridge will be built atop a new, smaller levee at the site of the current bridge. An adjacent to the new bridge, the new levee will be built along the existing right-of-way, and will replace the large, existing levee. A new stop would be built at the bridge. The project is part of a major $400 million project to rebuild the San Francisco-San Mateo County bridge for transit to replace the 28-year old bridge. The old bridge, built in the 1930s, carries eight-track railroads and auto traffic. Two-hundred thousand people live within a half-mile of the North East side of the esplanade, the site of the new bridge. The project is a combination of the new Bay Bridge Transit Center's parking garage and a new two-level underground parking garage and new bus transit center with 2,000 parking spaces. The state of California has awarded $11.4 million of Local Measure M for the Bay Bridge Transit Center project.
