Sandy Springs Police Officer Shot. Sandy Springs Police Officer Shot. Sandy Springs Police Officer Shot. The tragic shooting of Sandy Springs Police Sgt. Robert Nielsen has been a huge blow to the community, and the rapid response of the Sandy Springs Police Chief, Chief James Deason and the Sheriff's Office has been impressive. Their continued concern and care for Sgt. Nielsen and his family has been comforting, and they have done their best to focus on how to get justice for Robert. Since the shooting, the investigation has been progressing at a slow but steady pace. Sandy Springs Police have been working well together, pooling information and resources, and laying the groundwork for a strong case against the man accused of murdering Sgt. Nielsen. A murder charge has not been recommended, and the investigation is continuing. On Friday, Feb. 22, Sergeant Robert Nielsen's mother, Jo Ann Nielsen was shot and killed by a man who entered her home in Sandy Springs. The man allegedly was after Sergeant Nielsen, who was shot on Feb. 3. Now, a Sandy Springs police officer is speaking out, in hopes that it will help bring an end to the wait of justice for all involved, and also hopes that the public has an idea of how long the investigation might take. The officer, who asked to not be identified, is assigned to the Patrol Division. He told The Sandy Post that his colleagues, Chief James Deason and the Sheriff's Office have been very responsive to the family, and very concerned about the progress of the investigation. The officer told The Sandy Post, "It's been a rough few days. Chief Deason, he's been really good to the family." Sgt. Nielsen's mother and brother are in the process of relocating to Houston. The officer said there is a police analysis report indicating that the suspect could be a white male, and that his age is estimated to be in his late 30's or early 40's. The officer told The Sandy Post, "From our police perspective, this is a very, very tragic situation. It's a very difficult time for everyone involved. Our

Pet Business of the Week - Cordelia's Clam Shell Ranch When I first arrived at Cordelia's Clam Shell Ranch, one of the first things I noticed was the little polar bear. The ranch's pet-oriented business is named after the business owner's late son. There are hundreds of unique animals of all shapes and sizes at the ranch. Cordelia Blaine, 59, has been raising animals for more than 30 years. Her business, Cordelia's Clam Shell Ranch, is best known for its thousands of clamshell sea creatures, which can be purchased for $5-$8 each. To Blaine, however, the clamshells are just one of her many toys. She also works with her 8- and 10-year-old grandchildren. Before beginning to raise sea creatures, Blaine was involved in children's theatre and art. Growing up, the Clam Shell Ranch had some acreage that was used to raise clams. But she and her husband, Tom, were too busy raising their three children to pursue it. "I guess there really wasn't any clam-shelling business around here until 10 years ago," Blaine said. She opened Cordelia's Clam Shell Ranch three years ago after the couple's 10-year-old granddaughter read about children's shows that featured sea creatures. "If you want to go somewhere where you can see alligators, snakes, turtles, crabs, all types of reptiles and amphibians, she said, "this is it." Blaine thought the clam shell ranch was a great idea, but did not have any experience raising clams. "It just so happened that I went up to Utah (to take in the circus) at the same time (as the idea for the ranch)," she said. "It all just came together." Blaine hired her mother as a helper, and her mother's sister joined them a few years later. The first thing Blaine did was get a scientist to research which animals would be the most popular. "We just did some research, and it was turtles and clam shells," Blaine said. Since then, she has produced thousands of clamshell sea creatures, including turtles, baby alligators and dinosaur clams. Some are designed by her children and others by her mother's sister. The most popular clamshell sea creatures are the baby
