The comptroller's office, which oversees the tax department and is under state control, has not publicly discussed Gianaris' proposal since he first mentioned it in February. The spokesman said Gianaris' office has been "working through this with the comptroller's office and will advise on a legislative approach once the comptroller's office has had an opportunity to review these issues." WNYC's reporter spoke with Comptroller Thomas DiNapoli on Tuesday about Gianaris' proposal and said he failed to bring up the relevant tax code. DiNapoli told WNYC that the office is trying to be helpful. Gianaris said he still hopes to get support from Gov. Andrew Cuomo,
