protein content does not always increase when the surface area occupied by melanocytes and melanin is increased. The SSM contained relatively more protein than did the nevi but the reasons are not clear, although these tumours may be genetically different from the nevi.

Q: Python copy all directories, but copy some directories twice

My current Python code looks like:

#!/usr/bin/python
import shutil
import os
import sys
This is the input directory.
input_directory = "/var/log"
output_directory =

---

`"/var/log/short"` for root, dirs, filenames in `os.walk(input_directory):` for file in filenames: if `file.endswith(".log"):` `shutil.`
`copy(os.path.join(root, file),` `output_directory + "/log" +` `file)` Now, my problem is that I would like to copy all directories from `input_directory / var / log`
to `output_directory / log.` But not the directory `var /` `log.` This means that if the directory `var / log` contains subdirectories then I only want to copy these subdirectories once. What is the easiest way to achieve this? A: You can use `defaultdict` for that.

from collections import defaultdict # Get the list of files that should be included in this copy
input_files = [os.path.join(root, file) for root, dirs, filenames in os.walk(input_directory) for file in filenames if file.endswith(".log")] # when using Autoload in CakePHP 2.0 I got a little confused today. It's important for me to use core components of CakePHP 2.0 so I did some changes I didn't realize could make a big difference. I am trying to use Model->Inheritance with CakePHP 2.0 for the first time, and I have problems calling a constructor. Here is my ApplicationController which I must call $this->loadComponent('Inheritance'); in in order for the code to work. The constructor is not used because I get an undefined variable error because CakePHP could not autoload the inherited model, which I believe is the problem I have now. I changed the name of the connection, created the model and controller in the same file, created the corresponding ViewHelper class, and added the component correctly to the ApplicationController. I also added
