Interview with the Predator Updated on August 19, 2011 Interview with a Predator By Adam Kubba A long time ago in a galaxy far, far away, there was a little alien mutant looking for food, who had to hide from the hunters, the dogs and the people. He called himself Dr. Dr. He had odd looking limbs and arms that were half cheetah and half lion. He had a huge body and short hair. He was known for his own special DNA that protected him from the common cold. But, still, Dr. Dr. was hungry and he had to hide. One day, the hunter flew to the top of a hill. Dr. Dr. saw the fluttering of wings and the Hunter took off. But, Dr. Dr. followed, just to make sure the Hunter wasn't following him. Of course, the hunter flew to the top of a hill. Dr. Dr. knew that he couldn't catch the hunter, because the hunter was a hunter, but he did get to see how the hunter got his prey. The hunter sat on a hilltop of the forest and raised a weapon called the Predator. The Predator was one of the most dangerous weapons in the world. The Predator took aim at the jungle and shot a large missile, which hit the small predator. Dr. Dr. knew the hunter was about to take down the little predator. Dr. Dr. was exhausted and needed to rest. He knew the hunter was coming after him and he knew the Predator was on the way. So Dr. Dr. ran from the hunter and hid in the woods. The Predator came. It hovered in the air and shot the hunter with his bazooka at his back. It then hovered over the small predator. The Predator hovered and fired a hole. The Predator darted through the small predator and grabbed him with his talons. Dr. Dr. looked at the Predator. The Predator was sick and tired of following the hunters. He wanted to get in the belly of the beast and eat flesh and blood 1cdb36666d
