The IAPP's Privacy Audit is designed to provide organizations in these markets with the resources and insights to help them strengthen their data privacy strategies and practices, and achieve their regulatory requirements. The audit was developed through consultation with a wide range of privacy experts and organizations, including the Association of Chief Data Officers (ACDO), the European Data Protection Network, the International Association of Privacy Professionals (IAPP), the Office for Civil Rights (OCR) and the Department of Commerce (DOC), and other privacy advocates. "The US Department of Commerce has long taken a proactive approach to ensuring that laws and regulations protecting the personal information we collect and protect are enforced. As Mike DeCourcy notes, the league’s seemingly overnight growth of a Southern California-based conference is what’s surprising. But what has changed is that UCLA and Utah are separated by less than an hour’s drive and play a close game on a weekly basis. So the Pac-12 South has become a battle among those three teams and, to a degree, two-loss Washington, who just need to survive a trip to the Rose Bowl. That puts Arizona State in a different position as the only Pac-12 South team that has to contend with the other division’s top-heavy teams. “We don’t need to play Utah and UCLA. We’re their worst rivals,” ASU athletic director Ray Anderson told Arizona Republic. “I’d like to see Arizona State in the national championship, but I do understand where Arizona State fans are coming from. We are not going to have home-and-home series with those teams.” We’re half a year out from a season in which the conference looks as deep as it has in years as multiple squads that have been referred to as “national title contenders” by Mike Bresnahan don’t look great at the moment. But when we’re only one week removed from the league’s top-ranked team, Stanford, giving up 24 points on the road in a loss to BYU, they still have a chance to prove they belong.

The final version of the software, available in 10.11.4, will also be available on the Mac App Store next week, Apple said. The redesigned operating system, which Apple has been working on for the past 18 months, will make other big changes that should improve both Mac and iOS, including iCloud Drive, tabs, a revamped Notification Center, and a new system-wide dark mode. The changes were presented at the company's Worldwide Developers Conference in
