Driver Mouse Rexus G7Q: How to draw separate single line of text I'm making a demo program that will interactively draw a live timeline, with point data, and a date value that is updated every 0.05 seconds for 15 seconds. What I would like to do is I want to draw the current time value at the specific point on the timeline (say I have a point at (10, 10) and that point is red), but I also need to draw a separate single line of text that will say "Point A" or whatever point in the timeline that the text is currently at. I have set up an example program below, that will create a timeline with a text next to each point and will update it to say "Point A" when the mouse enters that point, but it will not draw a text line when the mouse leaves a specific point. Is there any way to do this?

import wx
import wx.lib.agw.aui.layouts.statusbar as statusbar
class timeline:
def __init__(self, parent):
super(self.__init__,self).__init__(parent) statusbar.StatusBar(self) self.CreateLayout()
def CreateLayout(self):
self.frame = wx.Frame(self, -1, "Demo app")
self.notebook = wx.Notebook(self.frame)
self.frame.Layout()
self.date_label = 0
self.date_range = 0.05
self.UpdateFrame(5, 25, "jim.jpg") self.imagePanel = wx.StaticBox(self.frame, -1, "

The

existence of a substance specific for desquamative changes in the epidermis has been suggested by the histological characteristics and epidermal origin of the psoriatic 'bastard cells'. These cells are characterized by large glycogen-containing vacuoles and are believed to be involved in the pathogenesis of psoriasis. In this paper the specific ultrastructure and histochemical properties of the 'bastard cells' are described with regard to the role which these cells may play in desquamation. It is suggested that the wide range of glycogen content seen in the cytoplasm of the epidermal cells is due to the existence of a substance specific for epidermal desquamation, capable of concentrating glycogen in epidermal cell cytoplasm in psoriatic lesions.
