Photoshop Lightroom. Photoshop Lightroom is also a popular package with a flexible image-editing program. It enables you to turn PSD files into a fully editable JPEG, TIFF, or Photoshop raw file and be able to use a variety of features, such as resizing, cropping, and adjusting sharpening. GIMP. This free image-editing program is similar to Photoshop but offers fewer options. Its popularity lies in its ability to do any task Photoshop does and in the fact that it's free. # BUSINESS OF SLABS AND HOW TO NAME YOUR SERVICE Etsy is a business-to-business website for the sale of handcrafted goods. Etsy's business model is referred to as a _service-based business_. In this model, a business does not make its products and then try to sell them. Rather, it simply makes products and then fulfills customer orders on a _per-unit price_. However, Etsy will do things differently for some products, such as wholesale, handmade artisan, and custom. It will have a different pricing structure for these products because Etsy only receives a small percentage of the purchase price. It's important to note that Etsy products cost more because Etsy is not paying a market rate for the product. This system is referred to as a _slavery-based business_. It's more effective for Etsy to maintain control over the items' appearance and production because the business doesn't have to pay for the item. The prices of products on Etsy do not list the cost of the raw materials used, because that's a business decision. However, it's common for business owners to reveal the cost of materials such as a stationery set or a custom baseball jersey. One important distinction to make between Etsy and other retail websites is that Etsy's business model is _retail_, whereas others are _retail-to-wholesale_ or _retail-to-consumer_. Businesses that go through the retail-to-wholesale or retail-to-consumer process must let the customer know how much the goods cost the business and how much the business receives in return. If you're ready to get started selling your Etsy business, read this section to familiarize yourself with the process. ## Assessing the Etsy Service The first thing you'll need to know is whether you want to go the single-service

Q: fetching data from firestore I am trying to figure out how to fetch the data from a Firestore collection with the documents included in it. I have a collection (as appears in Firebase) as follows: I want to fetch all the data (the documents) from this collection (I dont want to search for specific data, I want to have all the documents in the collection returned). I am using a reference to the collection in my code as: `Firestore firestore = FirebaseFirestore.getInstance(); FirebaseFirestore myFirestore = firestore.collection("Document");` and I am using a query in order to get the documents: `Query myQuery = myFirestore.whereEqualTo("UserName", "how to show this userName in the query?"); myQuery.get().addOnCompleteListener(new OnCompleteListener() { @Override public void onComplete(@NonNull Task task) { if (task.isSuccessful()) { for (DocumentSnapshot document : task.getResult()) { //DO SOME STUFF WITH THE DOCUMENT HERE } } else { Log.w(TAG, "Error getting documents.", task.getException()); } } });` But as there are hundreds of documents in the collection, the loop is taking longer than I would like it to. I am guessing that there is a smart way to pre-fetch these data to reduce the execution time of the loop. Is there a way of doing it? A: You can try to use the pagination of Firestore, so to avoid to do all the query as soon as there is a first request. with pagination, you can reduce the execution time of the loop. Check this video, with pagination in use:

On the heels of the recent suicides of Barbara Jordan and Colin Ferguson, two notable African Americans who died at roughly the same age, the NAACP is calling out three bills pending in the U.S. House that they say would "undermine civil rights and the very equality we seek to achieve." Among the three bills, the NAACP says: The Black Maternal Health (BMH) and Minority Health (MHC) Equity Act: The BMH and MHC Equity Act is a bill to provide funding and encourage states to expand access to community-based programs to reduce maternal mortality and mental health disparities. This bill highlights the staggering racial and racial inequity of pregnancy-related deaths; with Black mothers dying in U.S. hospitals four times as often as white mothers, and more than 50% of pregnant Black women without healthcare. Red flags regarding this bill include: Eliminating Affordable Care Act (ACA) coverage for legal abortions. Limiting the availability of abortions in the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Pushing for investigations of emergency rooms that are unable to provide advanced reproductive health care, including abortion, such as those in St. Louis, Missouri. The Helping Families in Mental Health (HFMH) Act: The HFMH Act would permanently reauthorize a lifeline program for those struggling with mental illness and/or substance abuse; and introduce a new mental health block grant program for local communities to fund mental health care facilities. Red flags regarding this bill include: Establishing a 30-day waiting period for medication abortions as well as increased obstacles for Medicaid patients to seek the care they need. Capping new funding from Medicaid at the 2017 level, rather than the inflation-adjusted cost estimates. The Black Maternal Health (BMH) Equity Act: The Black Maternal Health (BMH) Equity Act would allocate new funding for maternal-focused services for communities impacted by maternal mortality and maternal health. Red flags regarding this bill include: Limiting funding for abortions, including medication abortions, in the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands. Establishing barriers for Medicaid patients to seek care in hospitals that are not able to provide abortion services or referral. The Congressional Black Caucus is a group of Democratic U.S. legislators who work across party lines to represent the interests of African Americans
