Download: Xara 3D Maker v7.0.0.415 Crack By F4CG.Q: How to "Delete" users & Groups I want to delete a whole list of users and their groups in linux-mint. There is no "del" which I normally use to simply delete files. These users are being created using the "adduser" command. All the groups on the system are being created by the "addgroup" command. There is a "rm" (remove) command, but this will remove one user and all the groups. So, what command can I use to simply delete all the users and groups? Is there another command I can use to "delete" all the users and groups? A: You can delete users and groups with the userdel and useradd commands. But, as you noted, these can only remove one user at a time. You can use the newusers script to create user and group names for you, with options to create a separate home directory, etc. You can use the newusers script to create a list of users and groups to be deleted. The script will then script a command to be run that will remove each user/group. userdel -r --force --ignore-home-directory --force-logout --non-interactive A: I have not tried this, but I would guess that the following would work... remove all user-supplied home directories with a command similar to the following: cd / find. -print | sed's|/home/|g 1cdb3666d
