Ethan Miller/Getty Images The sun must be shining in New Jersey. Lil Wayne is coming to the Garden State. Donald Trump has still not confirmed his attendance, but the Las Vegas-based radio station, 94WIP, reported (via Lee Jenkins of the Philadelphia Daily News) that the President-elect will appear for a set at a show on Thursday. It may have been overheard before there was a public announcement. The news was leaked by a promoter who was at the event. Only after the show had ended did Trump tweet the following: "I'm reading that @liltywayne is coming to the #NYC show in December. @phillymag So who else would I bring...?" Lil Wayne was in the crowd at the Citi Field event on Tuesday, where he was a paid guest of Trumanscore. Last month, U.S. District Judge Michael Baylson ruled that Warner Music had violated a 2005 copyright agreement by not paying Wayne royalties on digital streams of his songs. It's ironic that the timing might work out for such a show, as Wayne has been out in New Jersey and North Carolina over the last two weeks to promote his latest album, Tha Carter V. He may well be staying there, and so Trump might be there as well. The set was originally designed for Lil Wayne, but he has been absent from the stage for some time, even at his own shows. The performing line-up has included a rotating cast of rappers including The Game, Kendrick Lamar, Meek Mill, Eminem, Fabolous and many more. That it is Wayne at the show is no surprise. But it could be the first time since the '90s that an artist signed to a major label has opened for the recently elected President. Wayne has suggested in the past that he would like to appear at Trump's inauguration and offered support, saying to TMZ: "That'd be dope. Everybody would be there, Def Jam would be there. Everybody, y'all know what I'm sayin'." Wayne's older brother, Baby Wayne, was a Trump supporter during the election, and the two are apparently friendly with some of the President's family. In July, Baby Wayne, who lives in New Jersey, was stopped at the White House complex while on a visit with President-elect Donald Trump's son-in-law, Jared Kushner. He

Q: hasClass, with a line through I have a navigation bar that I want to hide when the user scrolls down, or so to speak. I have no problem removing classes using a single function, but I really need some help understanding the concept of.hasClass() and.addClass() What I am trying to do is have a line through the menu when I reach the bottom of the page. What I have so far is: JS: $(function() { $('.menu').addClass('bounce'); $(window).scroll(function(){ if($(window).scrollTop() > $('#menu').height()) { $('.menu').removeClass('bounce'); } }); }); CSS: #menu { position: fixed; top: 0px; left: -50px; width: 100%; height: 50px; line-height: 50px; } .menu { background-color: #ccc; padding: 0px; margin: 0px; width: 100%; height: 50px; position: fixed; top: 0px; text-align: center; padding-top: 7px; } I know this code is redundant, but I want to know the proper way. A: I've never used bounce but from your question you could try this: $(function() { var topOfMenu = $('.menu').offset().top; $(window).scroll(function(){ if($(window).scrollTop() > topOfMenu) { $('.menu').addClass('line'); } }); }); That basically adds a class of line to the menu to indicate
