PS2 Music Visualizer is a freeware of peu fumer or cigarette smoking pictogram designed to be used as Desktop icons or Wallpapers, displaying the audio waveform of the music selected from your Music Library. It run under most Windows OS and is compatible with most MP3, OGG, WAV files including the OGG Vorbis Audio Encoding format. The basic idea is simple - put a icon to the Desktop with a screenshot of the Music Visualizer. Each song can be rendered to a different size and icon to place on your Desktop or on your Computer Wallpaper. You can also start your music visualization as an Icon Task that is displayed on your Desktop all the time. It works with playlists of your Music Library and it can also be to run when your windows desktop is loaded, as your login wallpaper. The software has two versions. One is free (it uses the video card's hardware), the other one is a shareware (CPU or GPU) model. The shareware version has a possibility to open a separate window showing the playlist, and it's also possible to change the size of each icon. The application is freeware and it's distributed as a 32 or 64 bit executable file (Win32/Win64) for the latest Windows and Linux OSes. The program runs from Music Visualizer is an application that is in the command line (or console) and it is accessible after clicking the Desktop icon on the Windows menu.
