TreeNode is an Android application with a quirky first-timer look and feel, but which helps you by putting the best possible practices into practice. It's much more than an ordinary note-taking app. With TreeNode, you will have the ability to link notes with other notes, create folders, add notes to the list of favorites, mark lists as completed and more. A well-organized note system will provide you with more space for new and meaningful thoughts. And, if you feel compelled to document the things you do, TreeNode has a built-in task recorder, too, for making it easier to record your daily tasks. The goal of the developers of this useful application is to make the app more reliable, more user-friendly and more comprehensive. Here is the description from the website:

TreeNote is a recently launched app that aims at making your note-taking process faster, more organized, and accessible by allowing to store your file notes locally or in any indicated synchronization folder in the cloud such as Dropbox, Google Drive, Microsoft OneDrive, etc. Assembling a neatly organized note system Note-taking programs can be used in many ways. Some use these for writing down detailed information about a process/an object/a tool, others use them like to-do task lists, and others turn their functionalities to shopping/wish lists. All you need from a program of that kind is to deliver the minimal requirements to satisfy those needs. `TreeNode` offers a hierarchically-disposed note system with the possibility to reconfigure the initial structure:

change the folders' names, add/remove sub-folders, modify and customize your notes/lists, etc. Among others, the tool also allows for text-searching across files, password protecting your notes, and synchronizing the content to make it available at all times (from the cloud, PC, USB). Custom-tailored inputs and time tracking The text editor is where you write all your notes, ideas, tasks.

Intrinsically, it offers a variety of font pallets, the entire chromatic spectrum, alongside all the necessary elements for making your notes truly customized and stand out: bullet and keyboard insertions, text highlight, text formatting, etc. The editor also allows for URL insertion and picture attachment (using drag and drop) with the resizing option. One of the most helpful features is the one that
