Why Should I Use Photoshop? You need Photoshop to edit high-quality images, create new high-quality images, or both. The most common use of Photoshop is as a full-featured photo editor. This is the type of software that most home users use to edit their digital photographs. There are several features of Photoshop that make it a popular choice to edit digital photographs: Feature Prototyping This feature allows you to easily create a new image using scratch space. This feature allows you to easily create a new image using scratch space. Levels When you edit images, you may need to adjust the lightness and contrast of the image in one way or the other. Results of radioimmunotherapy in disseminated AIDS-related lymphoma. Among 201 patients with disseminated AIDS-related lymphoma treated in a prospective trial of intensive therapy between 1985 and 1996, 88 responded to a median of 5 (1-17) cycles of polychemotherapy. Seventy-two of these 88 patients then had autologous peripheral blood stem cell transplantation (APBSCT). Thirty-three of 70 evaluable patients treated only with APBSCT and 26 of 27 evaluable patients treated with radioimmunotherapy followed by APBSCT were alive after a median of 17 and 18 months, respectively, indicating that both approaches are effective in the treatment of AIDS-related lymphoma. Although responses and survival rates were lower in patients treated in the 'monotherapy' and 'radioimmunotherapy only' arms than in the 'chemotherapy only' arm, the overall survival rate was similar in all three arms, confirming that radioimmunotherapy can be substituted for a stem cell transplantation in the treatment of AIDS-related lymphoma. These results validate the use of radioimmunotherapy in the treatment of AIDS-related lymphoma. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates generally to a broadcast data transmission method and apparatus, and more particularly to a broadcast data transmission method and apparatus for receiving an MPEG-2 transport stream from a broadcasting station, converting the MPEG-2 transport stream into discrete video and audio data, and performing predetermined data multiplexing and demultiplexing. 2. Description of the Related Art When digital broadcasting is introduced, it is considered that broadcast contents will be replaced with digital contents. Specifically, the broadcast contents may be stored in a recording medium or converted into digital data, and the digital data will be stored in a portable recording medium, etc. In this case, broadcast contents will be distributed using an MPEG-2 transport stream. Further, an MPEG-2 (Moving Pictures Experts Group) standard for transmitting and receiving the transport stream has also been developed, and therefore the system has been assumed to be based on the MPEG-2 standard. Further, since the MPEG-2 standard is standardized at a low bit rate, it can reduce the volume of digital contents as compared with other digital formats. In the application of an Internet protocol (IP)-based broadcasting system to broadcasting, generally, a broadcast station of digital contents stores desired program data in a recording medium, and it is played back for reproduction on a receiving side. In a case of

Q: Change default class of object when button is clicked I have a UITableView with cells containing UIImageViews. The user can click one of the cells and it will turn into a Button. They then click the button and it dismisses the view. I want the cell containing the button to change color when the button is pressed. I have the cell's class setup like this: UITableViewCell *tblcell = [[UITableViewCell alloc] initWithReuseIdentifier:@"tblcell"]; [tblcell.contentView addSubview: cellImage]; cellImage is the UIImageView: cellImage.clipsToBounds = YES; cellImage.contentMode = UIViewContentModeScaleAspectFill; I assume the issue is with the tableView cell being an embedded object inside of a view. I'm struggling to change that as well. A: Make sure that you assigned a class when you created your UITableViewCell in the Interface Builder (Xcode > Files > UITableViewCells). For example, I have a UIButton that I create in the Interface Builder, so the controller's UIButton View looks like this in Interface Builder: I then set the class of my button in the UITableViewCell subclass: UITableViewCell *cell = [self.tableView dequeueReusableCellWithIdentifier:@"cell" forIndexPath:indexPath]; cell.selectionStyle = UITableViewCellSelectionStyleNone; cell.textLabel.text = [self.displayLabels[indexPath.row] stringByAppendingString:@" "]; cell.imageView.image = [UIImage imageNamed:@"General.png"]; cell.imageView.highlightedImage = [UIImage imageNamed:@"General_Highlighted.png"]; [cell.imageView setImage:[UIImage imageNamed:@"General_Highlighted.png"]]; [cell setSelectedStyle:UITableViewCellStyleNone]; [cell addSubview:btn]; return cell; Where btn is my UIButton. Hope it helps. A: You need to create a custom class. Create a class called CustomCell that extends UITableViewCell and
