Prevalence of eating disorders among patients referred to a consultation-liaison service for weight concerns. This study examined the prevalence of eating disorders among patients referred to a consultation-liaison service for weight concerns and determined whether demographic factors, weight concern characteristics, and treatment engagement predict eating disorder diagnoses. Cross-sectional data were analyzed from 183 patients (52% female) who were seen at a multidisciplinary weight management program between January 2005 and December 2006. Forty-seven percent of patients were diagnosed with an eating disorder. Demographic and weight concern characteristics, such as weight concern duration, concern severity, and weight concern cognitions, did not predict eating disorder diagnoses. However, patients who engaged in more treatment attendance ($P = .002$) were less likely to have an eating disorder. After adjusting for treatment engagement, a previous eating disorder diagnosis (odds ratio [OR] = 7.89), weight concern severity (OR = 1.13), and concern severity and time since worry onset (OR = 1.71) were associated with an eating disorder diagnosis. The prevalence of eating disorders in patients referred to a multidisciplinary weight management program was high. Patients who met criteria for eating disorders were more likely to have a previous eating disorder, to report weight concern severity, and to report a concern about weight onset. These findings suggest that eating disorders should be assessed and addressed during treatment programs.

Cardinals got to the playoffs behind a strong running game in their first season under the leadership of running back David Johnson, who signed a five-year, $82 million contract in the offseason. “He brings a spark,” Peterson said. “He brings energy to the field, especially after the bye week. He played a lot of football, and that’s exciting to see.” That Johnson was the 21st overall pick in the 2013 draft was validation for those who paid attention to his second-half success at the University of Arizona. He rushed for 2,364 yards in his final two seasons while averaging more than 4 yards a carry in 2015. After being the only rookie running back to eclipse 100 yards in a game in 2013, the 6-foot-2, 231-pound Johnson ran for 106 yards on 21 carries last week against the Seahawks to boost his season total to 1,103 yards, second in the league behind Denver's Devontae Booker (1,228). Johnson is averaging nearly five yards per carry, and he is a threat to run over tacklers from the line of scrimmage or get a head of steam and break outside. "The kid is a joy to watch," offensive coordinator Mike McCoy said of Johnson. “Just to watch him work in the offseason. And then when he gets to practice, you just see the practice tempo pick up. He’s a guy, as an experienced football player, he makes a lot of head-first tackles that a lot of veteran guys don’t do. He’s a tough kid. He has toughness in his game. But he’s a joyful player. It’s fun to watch him. He’s a coach’s kid. His dad was a football player, and he's got that extra motivation level that he wants to play and be good. And he knows what it takes to be a good player."

Peterson, however, won't get to see much of Johnson in action this week.

Cardinals coach Bruce Arians said last week that he doesn't see Peterson playing this season. "He's just getting our

(rehabilitation) program going,” Arians said last week. “We d0c515b9f4
