Ask HN: How do you know if your comment is getting up-voted? - greenmountain There are now "comments" on HN like "I understand there are many things you can do here. Some of them are easy, some are more complicated and may need to be performed manually. I have designed a system to perform all of this automatically, but I need a constant crowd that can test it. I will commit $100 to anyone who has basic programming skills to help me with the project. Email me if you're interested." etc etc. I was wondering if there was a resource (like news, reddit, etc) that was monitoring comments and displaying information on their validity? ===== PaulHoule It's the backscatter problem. If you hide Paul Graham's latest one sentence rant as a link and write "This is a link to a rant that's not worth reading", will pg upvote your link? ~~~ greenmountain I didn't understand the meaning of that, so yes, upvoting a link might be common, but for a submission in a forum, I believe an upvote would indicate general support for the post. ~~~ krapp >upvote a link Nope, karma doesn't do that anymore. ----- tehsauce You can go to profile page of a post and see which users have up-voted it. ----- greendata reddit.com/r/programming is probably what you're looking for. Also, balsamiq.com is where I go for feedback on my marketing campaign (the comments usually give me helpful insights in how I can tweak it). NEW YORK (Reuters) - Bitcoin is on track to test $6,000 in December after touching a recent record high on Wednesday and recovering from a tumultuous week. Bitcoin prices rallied to $5,822.78, the highest since July 16, from a low of $5,082.97 on December 10, according to data from CoinDesk. The price increase follows a weekend of wobbly, downward moves after an angry exit on Friday from CME Group Inc's bitcoin futures. The digital currency's price began to climb last week from around $1,900 on BitFinex, making a new high of $4,941

Genomic analysis of Burkitt's lymphoma and its variants by two-color fluorescence in situ hybridization. There are no published descriptions of the genomic characteristics of Burkitt's lymphoma variants. Here, we investigated the genomic differences between Burkitt's lymphoma and its variants, including Burkitt's lymphoma with t(8;14)(q24;q32), the endemic Burkitt's lymphoma variant, the B-cell lymphoma in the immunodeficient setting, and the secondary extranodal presentation of Burkitt's lymphoma using comparative genomic hybridization. The t(8;14) variant was characterized by frequent gains at 8q and losses at 14q, the endemic variant by gains at 3q, 5q, 7q, 8q, 9q, 14q, and 15q and losses at 6q, 9q, 13q, and 14q, the B-cell lymphoma in the immunodeficient setting by frequent losses at 4q and 5q and an absence of gains, and the secondary extranodal presentation by losses at 1p, 3q, 5q, 6q, 7q, 11q, 17p, and 18p and a gain at 12q. There was a subset of patients with Burkitt's lymphoma that had the t(8;14)(q24;q32) as well as gains at 6q, 9q, 12p, 13q, 15q, and 18q; this group had a younger age of onset and a poorer prognosis than those patients without the t(8;14)(q24;q32). The results provide new insights into the molecular heterogeneity of Burkitt's lymphoma. In addition, the results demonstrate that the t(8;14)(q24;q32) can be the initial event in the development of certain cases of Burkitt's lymphoma. Re: Best way to cure vietnam hangover I'd say to catch up with your friends, drink some more and have a nap then when you wake up it'll all be a bit easier to deal with. Its been said that a hangover is when your morning hangover cannot be cured by more booze. Good luck Re: Best way to cure vietnam hangover Originally Posted by BC2I'd say to catch up with your friends, drink some more and have a nap then when you wake up it'll all be a bit easier to deal with
