1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an electro-optic device, a liquid crystal display panel, an electronic apparatus, and a method of fabricating an electro-optic device. 2. Description of the Related Art Liquid crystal display panels have been used in monitors of notebook computers and personal computers, televisions, and the like, and liquid crystal display devices are becoming ever more compact with enhanced fineness and sophistication. Such a liquid crystal display device includes a liquid crystal display panel, and in the liquid crystal display panel, a liquid crystal layer is disposed between a pair of substrates, and the transmittance of light passing through the liquid crystal layer is controlled by changing the orientation state of the liquid crystal molecules. The viewing angle characteristics (viewing angle dependency) of liquid crystal display panels is an important characteristic. In recent years, various modes such as an In Plane Switching (hereinafter referred to as an "IPS") mode, a Multi-domain Vertical Alignment (hereinafter referred to as an "MVA") mode, and the like have been proposed to improve the viewing angle characteristics of liquid crystal display panels. JP-A-2001-309859 describes a liquid crystal display device which includes, in a pair of substrates, pixel electrodes and counter electrodes formed into a comb shape with a predetermined gap therebetween, and where liquid crystal molecules are vertically aligned at a predetermined angle between the counter electrode and the pixel electrode by applying an electric field between the pixel electrode and the counter electrode and controlling the alignment direction of the liquid crystal molecules in order to improve the viewing angle characteristics. JP-A-2007-123239 describes a liquid crystal display device where the liquid crystal molecules are vertically aligned by forming a slit pattern of a portion having no counter electrode on a counter substrate, the slit pattern being extended in a direction perpendicular to the counter substrate. JP-A-2007-123239 also describes a liquid crystal display device where the alignment direction of the liquid crystal molecules is controlled by a fringe field formed by a slit pattern formed in a portion having no counter electrode and by the counter electrode. Wetzel, Carpenter, Bennett & Morrissey, Newark, N.J., for defendants. OPINION SAROKIN, District Judge. The case before the court is an action to recover damages for the alleged wrongful death of John Scott, which was allegedly caused by a stock manipulation scheme perpetrated by the defendant National Association of Securities Dealers ("NASD"). The NASD is a self-regulatory organization ("SRO"), which is an industry trade association to which securities firms belong. The New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE") and NYSE, Inc. ("NYSE, Inc.") are also defendants. This court has jurisdiction of this case by virtue of 15 U.S.C. § 78aa, 28 U.S.C. § 1331, and 28 U.S.C. § 1332. Plaintiff asserts the following counts of the complaint: (1) negligence; (2) breach of fiduciary duty; (3) breach of contract; (4) violation of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"), 18 U.S.C. § 1961 et seq.; and (5) common law fraud.
