On September 20th of 2017, President Donald Trump tweeted that the USA would, if elected to office, withdraw from the Paris Agreement. Four days later, at the UN Climate Conference in Bonn, Secretary of State Rex Tillerson stated that the USA would remain a part of the Paris Accord. The USA has been a world leader in terms of being part of the Paris Accord. But on this matter, President Trump made it clear in his first tweet – he would stay in the Paris Accord. On the other hand, Secretary of State Tillerson was clear that he would stay in. In the days since the Paris Agreement was signed, each of those statements has been proven untrue. (As well, there are others as well, one of which I will address later.) And since the signing of the Paris Agreement, the world has moved on. As a result, there are many that believe that the country's withdrawal from the Paris Agreement will have little to no effect. Before continuing, I would like to point out that the opinion of what will be the impact of President Trump's recent Twitter outburst is irrelevant to this article. The fact is that the Paris Agreement is happening. So, if the president does decide to back out, he will have an impact on the environment, and thus, on the people. Now, let's begin. As of April 22nd, 2017, 29 Nations had ratified the Paris Agreement. That means that if the country remains in the agreement, the rest of the world is required to follow. On April 4th, the USA officially signed the agreement. That means that all other Nations are required to follow. However, because of the administration's lack of transparency and lack of plans to uphold the agreement, the future is somewhat unclear. No matter what path the USA decides to take – the Paris Agreement remains in effect. So what will that mean to the people? Remaining in the agreement is going to mean the following to both the environment and the people: 1. More jobs for the environment All the efforts that have gone into the Paris Agreement will be moving forward. As well, various States will be investing funds in their environment. Although not as tangible as what will happen if the USA stays in the agreement, I believe that the job that will be created for the environment is going to greatly benefit the people. Since the signing of the Paris Agreement, be a cool and convenient place to grab an inexpensive meal or a snack. The Bistro is done in a retro style with a rustic theme. Open since 2005, The Bistro has been an all ages restaurant. For a special occasion I will be there. Convenient location near the Town Center, Exposition light Rail stop and a short drive to the University of California, Berkeley. If you stop into a San Francisco cafe these days, you will probably find me there — because I live there. When I relocated to the City from San Diego in July of 2005, I made a promise to myself that I would go to at least 10 San Francisco cafes. So I have been making it a point to go to at least one a month. For me, cafes are the quintessence of my city. They are located in neighborhoods, old and new, some on streets lined with gorgeous Victorian architecture and others in the middle of the city with dazzling views of the San Francisco Bay. They are tiny places that serve simple food and usually have a large selection of wine and beer. I went to so many San Francisco cafes that I have come to think of this month as the month of Cafe Month. I have had the pleasure of seeing many of my friends and fellow San Franciscans over the last ten months and I can't imagine my city without them. But now I have to give up my monthly cafe and start focusing on my monthly wine night. My daily and weekly food and drink highlights from San Francisco cafes include the following: Dart's Social House. I go there quite often. A small neighborhood place that serves a great breakfast with a big selection of breakfast sandwiches, eggs, omelets and fresh waffles. I particularly enjoy the breakfast egg sandwich. One of the sandwiches (the Hangtown Fry) is well over 100 years old and Dart's is still selling it. The Hangtown Fry has a thick slice of fried potato, chunks of sausage and a dollop of Swiss cheese melted on top. I chose mine with salmon sausage. The choice is up to you! Sometimes you crave a pretzel. A list of the San Francisco favorites including Dave's Pretzel has been prepared for you. I just love the feel of a place that has been open over 100 years, like Dart's. I'm a sucker for the old stuff. The original
