What's New in the Motamo?

The core features of Motamo are as follows: ==> Create anagrams Generates anagrams of a set of letters in the original word. The resulting words are sorted alphabetically. ==> Transform anagrams Changes the anagrams into a set of new words. It builds a new anagram by either adding or deleting characters to the original word. For example, two letter words to transform are "aa" and "ab". The result of the transformation of "aa" is "aa", and the result of "ab" is "ba". There are many types of transformation combinations, which include the following: ==> String to string Trims or splits a word into two or more words. For example, "teh" becomes "te", "y" becomes "y", and "coffee" becomes "cfe". ==> Naming convention Determine which letters in a word will serve as the new letters for that word. The conventions that are currently supported are: ==> A-Z Generate words starting with each letter of the alphabet (A, B, etc.). ==> 0-9 Generate words from each digit (0, 1, etc.). ==> X and O Generate words containing any one of the letters X or O. ==> + and - Generate words from any of the characters of the plus or minus signs. ==> / and \ Generate words from any of the characters of the slash or backslash. ==> Certain characters Add or remove a set of characters from a word. It can be any character, it can be a set of characters. For example, it can remove the "oo" characters from the word "foo". ==> Apostrophe's Generate words containing the characters starting with the apostrophe. For example, the word "of" will generate "of" and "off". ==> Spaces Generate words containing the space characters (space, tabs, etc.). ==> Underscore's Generate words containing the underscore character. The underscore is a very special character for English, which can't be found on the keyboard. ==> Replacement characters Add or remove a set of characters from a word. It is possible to add any character, and it is possible to remove any character. ==> Remove any characters Remove a set of characters from the original word. ==>
