Players now feature unprecedented depth of expression and individuality, thanks to uniquely precise and detailed animation driven by an expanded suite of movement, control and animation tools for improved player character creation and appearance. In FIFA 22, you can now paint your footballer's hair. Your player can even go bald if you want to. Other features include: Improved Player Creation: Create your very own unique player by choosing from over 600 new player templates, ranging from real-world players to players inspired by players from different sports. See your creation evolve as you make your way from the bench to goal, by introducing new skills and attributes throughout the season. Generate your own player from a unique body shape using the new Body Creator feature Create your own player using the new Body Creator feature The new Body Creator lets you create your very own unique player by choosing from over 600 new templates. Players with a variety of skin tones and body shapes can now be created. The Body Creator lets you tweak or alter the shape of your player as the season progresses, creating a unique individual. New features also allow you to tweak your player's clothing while creating him. Goalkeepers can now use a diving save animation, which will even happen in the heat of the battle. This will eliminate any weird little wobbles the goalkeeper will make as he comes down with the ball. FIFA 20 introduced a new dive system. At the last moment before the ball comes to the goalkeeper, the player will actually glide downward to the ground and then throw his leg up into the ball. This should help eliminate any odd little wobbles the goalkeeper will make. Goalkeepers can now go down in style, with this new diving save system. New skill system: Every footballer now has more skills and attributes to unlock, earning them through in-game progression. Players can level up their players to unlock new goalkeeping attributes and improve their set pieces. Players can also unlock new goalkeeping skills. FIFA 19 introduced the new 'sprint' system, which gave players a bit of a kick in-game. Now, sprinting around the pitch will be even faster as the sprinting animation will occur immediately after the player's foot hits the ground. We've also given the sprint animations a bit of a makeover. The sprint animations for players have been completely revamped, with them now entering and leaving the sprint based on the system we

FIFA (acronym for “For example: If you are playing as “Team X” vs “Team Y”, and Team Y gets a Penalty, “Hold the Button/Press the Right Stick to Throw the ball in for a shot.” or “If you are playing as a Defender, if you move the D-Pad Left, right, up, or down, the player will run/dodge accordingly.”) is an electronic sports video game series created by Electronic Arts available for the Sony PlayStation, Sega Dreamcast, GameCube, Xbox, Sony PlayStation 2, Nintendo GameCube, Xbox and Microsoft Windows. It is the first video game in history to sell over 100 million units worldwide. Although it is a sport video game, it is not meant to be realistic, but to instead maintain the video game-like feel of a sport, thus resulting in gameplay that is the closest yet to real life sports. The games are edited to follow real-life events, with all major football tournaments from the past 20 years included in the series (not including FIFA United Classics), such as the 1998 and 2002 FIFA World Cups and the UEFA Champions League. Other sports that are featured in the game include Association football, Baseball, Basketball, Cricket, Field hockey, American football, Handball, Association football, Roller hockey, Volleyball, and Water skiing. History The franchise first appeared in the video game FA Football Manager in 1989. It has been published by EA Canada since then. The game was also one of the first sports games to allow players to create their own teams. Although many of the teams (like Seattle Sounders and Anaheim ThunderCats) are fictional, most real-life teams (like New York Cosmos and New England Revolution) appear. Gameplay My Player My Player is the leading mode for user created content (UCC) in the series. It is separated in 2 different views, the Create-a-Player and the Create-a-Club. In Create-a-Player, players can customize the appearance of their player, as well as train and play on the field with the already created player. They can also create custom formations and tactics. In Create-a-Club, they can create, join, or play in their own team. It allows them to create clubs with real-life players and to compete against other teams on their own.
