Amyloidosis: diagnosis and management. Amyloidosis is a systemic disorder in which amyloid protein fibrils accumulate. We provide a brief review of amyloidoses, including light-chain amyloidosis, plasma cell dyscrasias, and those associated with fibril-forming proteins including immunoglobulin light chains, amyloid A, transthyretin, beta 2-microglobulin, apolipoprotein A1, lysozyme, and others. Amyloidosis patients present with a wide range of symptoms, from asymptomatic to end stage disease, and the physician must be able to make a prompt and accurate diagnosis. We provide an overview of the diagnosis and management of these patients.Q: How to debug PHP fatal error with apache I have a apache web server running PHP 5.2.17 on a Linux box. I'm running wordpress from localhost and if I kill the PHP script (either manually or with ctrl+c, the site runs fine. I've been unable to get the PHP script to run without it shutting down. I read that I should debug with apache_log_level but I don't know what apache_log_level to set it at, and that doesn't seem to be working. Any advice would be great! Update: I turned off the standard error logs and used lsof to find out what was causing my script to die. The process that was eating up all the memory was my browser which seemed weird. Still no luck getting my php script to run again. A: you could try apache_log_level use of syslog looking at the Apache error log could be tricky, if you need more details here's the link good luck Search 18th MAN Registered Fight Trainer/Instructor The 18th Man Foundation will be sponsored by the University of Virginia Athletic Department during the 2011-12 season.
