Bar-Hine Bar-Hine may refer to: G. R. Bar-Hine, a British-born novelist and short story writer Valentine Bar-Hine (1903–1961), designer of the B-26 Marauder See also Hine (disambiguation) Bar-Hine Shul, an Orthodox synagogue in Albuquerque, New Mexico Category:Jewish surnames Category:Yiddish-language surnamesQ: Difference between onclick="return false;" and onclick="return false;". which one is efficient? I would like to know what's the difference between these two ways? Which one is more efficient? A: They are both technically correct, but let me explain it as simply as possible. If you are in strict mode (e.g. using the moe.strict() library) then use of onclick="return false;" is recommended because otherwise the browser will simply ignore it. With onclick="return false;" onclick="return false;" is written out correctly, even in strict mode. However, in many scenarios, the difference is negligible. If you aren't using strict mode, it's only one extra character. Either way, it doesn't matter. The difference between onclick="return false;" and onclick="return false; is one is that the latter returns the function value rather than the function value before the function is called, and the difference is that in the latter, the actual script is still executed, where in the former, it simply skips the function. A: The first one will do what you've asked while the second won't and will throw an error. It's just a different way of doing it. Q: Using jquery to add a class to form I have a PHP form on my website, it consists of a text input box, a select box, and a button. I have a jquery function that hides the select box and button when a user click the button. $(document).ready(function(){ $('#submit').click(function() { if ($('select').is(":hidden")) { $('select').show(); $('#submit').hide(); }

Q: LNK2019 : error LNK2019: unresolved external symbol I'm working on a project using two different libraries: The main project contains the class main_project. The library project contains several classes: CRTP, ParallelStack, ParallelStackWithJobs. I'm struggling with the compilation error: LNK2019 : unresolved external symbol "public: virtual __thiscall CRTP::~CRTP(void)" (??1?$CRTP@U@main_project@@U@?$allocator@U@0@XZ) On CRTP class, I don't have any constructor or destructor. What I've done : In main_project, I've created a function virtual void print(void). In ParallelStackWithJobs, I've defined the print method in the CRTP interface as virtual void print(void). In ParallelStackWithJobs, I've implemented the method as void print(void) in the CRTP class. In ParallelStackWithJobs, I've implemented main_project as class B as virtual class A. And I've included also the CRTP class from main_project as class A. And the compile error is still at CRTP in main_project. What could I possibly doing wrong? Thanks in advance, Joaquim A: You defined the CRTP in your library, but never imported it into your main project. When you link your main project, it looks for CRTP in the same library that contains it, and tries to find the definitions for it, including the virtual destructor. Since you didn't include the CRTP in your main project, that is
