With Monday being the first day of 2009, let's take a look at some Wall Street nuggets to warm the hearts of the economic doomsayers and buck the bear market. What some may not know is that the economic indicators are actually moving well. Don't look now but the Dow is at 8,838.91, and the NASDAQ is at 2,288.52. So what gives? Well, that's the stock market for you. The Dow is nearly 400 points higher than it was on the year's first trading day. The Dow is up more than 14 percent, or about 1,300 points, in just over a week. We're looking at the longest bull market in U.S. history. Of course, the Dow was higher at this time in 2003, 2008, 2007, and 1990. The NASDAQ is up 7 percent, or about 400 points, in the same time frame. The S&P 500 is also up about 5 percent. The S&P 500 gained nearly 20 percent in 2008 in the first half of the year. A look at some Wall Street/market indicators shows the economy will stay on a solid path. The Federal Reserve's industrial production index rose to a 14-month high in January. February manufacturing activity contracted for the first time in four 648931e174

Since March I've watched students enter the workforce, and other leave for good. A man who to this day I call Jack, came into the store with two other staff members one day when we were having a bad day. As a group they bought several sandwiches and drinks. He watched from the end of the counter as I prepared the largest bill I've ever seen, and the total amount. I told him he couldn't have the money and he asked me what I could do, he said he was truly sorry. We managed to work out a new payment plan that worked for all of us. He was no longer an employee of the store, but he could still buy the things he needed from us. I see him still every now and then at my garden show. I still see his name on our driver's license, and just saw it on the department's computer as being "terminated" from the office. Jack stopped in today to tell me something he had been too embarrassed to tell me in person. He was taking items for gas out of the store, a box of potato chips, a pack of frozen dinners, and a 12 pack of beer. And guess what??? He loaded them on the back of the truck behind a flat bed full of produce. That truck will not be at the farm show. He knows where I live. He knows where the neighbours live. He works at Our Lady of Lourdes Hall across the street from me. He knows who I work for. He knows who I work for at the Catholic Centre. He knows I'm a good customer of theirs. He knows I deal with the priests and with the nuns. He knows I worked at the
