HyperMotion technology is just one of the many new features in FIFA 22, including the ability to kick the ball further, pass through multiple defenders, intercept the ball and score from unique attacking positions. Players now step in their own footsteps and they reflect their individual height, reach and positioning. They also run more consistently and dynamically, with sprint distances that are up to 15 percent greater in more realistic simulations. Artificial intelligence has been improved, with nuanced decisions, more defensive and individual marking, and an in-depth playbook. Ultimate Player Behavior is also new in FIFA 22, and enables players to adapt their actions in a match based on each other's play style. Goalkeepers now slide to face the ball instead of simply picking a direction. The new FIFA 22 demo will be available starting next week for PlayStation 4, Xbox One, PC, and Nintendo Switch. Players who pre-order FIFA 22 at the PlayStation Store will receive a special 'Winter Kick Off' edition. "This generation of players is evolving at a pace that is on par with the advances in technology in previous years, and FIFA 22 will be in a league of its own when it comes to football games," said Aaron McHardy, Head of Production at EA SPORTS. "From the hyper-realistic Player Impact Engine, to 'HyperMotion' technology, new accurate dribbling techniques and countless other features in FIFA 22, fans are in for the biggest, most realistic football

What's new in Fifa 22:

- HyperMotion Technology FIFA 22 introduces “HyperMotion Technology,” a feature that uses motion capture data collected from real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. It creates a realistic and immersive experience when you play as a player. The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels, as well as on-ball action is used to power FIFA 22 gameplay. You’ll be able to enjoy the massive day-night stadiums of the Premier League, the Brazil National Team and many more, along with an all-new cycling system that lets you manipulate the ball more naturally and get shot on goal with precise timing.
